Carver High School

Readers! The Carver News.

Annual May Day activities were held at Camp Winonah on Friday, May 2. The occasion was very colorful. All county schools participated in the folk dances, nursery rhymes, may pole dance, stunts and calisthenics. The May Queen, Bernice Lewis, and her ten attendants reigned with the charm and dignity that accompanies queens.

Our Supervisor, Mrs. Mozella J. Price, will be honored as the "Lady of the Year," at Virginia State College at commencement exercises this month. For her work and her achievements in the field of education in Appomattox County and for her qualities of leadership and fine womanhood, this honor is bestowed. We indeed feel proud of Mrs. Price and look back to the pioneer years and compare them with the modern plant here at Carver—this she worked for.

The Carver Herald has come from the printers. It is a very commendable paper, Seniors! Hurry and distribute them as we may see your photos and read the latest news around Carver.

The Tenth Grade leaves for Washington on Thursday morning. Two days will be spent on this educational tour. Main interest is in the Zoo and Zoological Gardens as a culminating activity for the Biology class. Mrs. Ora W. Smith is sponsoring the trip.

The Senior Class is now preparing for the grand finale. Class Night rehearsals are being held; the three honor grads are in the process of getting speeches done; then, too, all work must be done in getting ready for Senior Privileges which, by the way, aren't too far off.

Until next week: our thought for the week—

"Who is the happiest of men?
He who values the merits of others
And in their pleasure takes joy, even as though t'were his own."

Driving Rules Help Motorists Up Mileage

PITTSBURGH—The average motorist can increase his mileage per gallon at least 10% and often much more by economical driving habits, according to Harry A. Bigley, Jr., chief of Gulf Oil laboratories' test drivers.

It is a lot more practical for most people to study the mileage they get as drivers than the mileage their cars get, Mr. Bigley asserts.

This conclusion is based on 15 years of exhaustive gasoline performance studies by the laboratories. In this research more than a million miles have been covered by test crews.

Economy practices developed in these experiments enable test drivers to use 10% to 20% less fuel in taking the same car over the same course under the same conditions as an average motorist.

Mr. Bigley has simplified the test crew experience into the following practical rules for everyday driving. They are given to help meet today's needs for personal and national economy:

1—Drive at a steady speed. Every time you push the pedal down you throw a step-up gasoline charge into the engine to assist the speed change. Drivers who speed-up, pass, slow-by, and slow down use almost a third more gasoline.

2—Drive at a moderate speed. At 60 m.p.h. you use 25% more fuel per mile than at 30. Anyway lab. test drivers find the speedy motorist gains almost no extra time because he gets more involved in traffic entanglements.

3—In starting accelerate moderately, going into high between 15 and 20. Jack-rabbit starts and beating the other fellow from the light is fun you pay for in needless gasoline expenditure.

4—On steep grades, shift to lower gears when speed falls below 20, and maintain speed at 20 or less, while in the lower gear. Motorists who pride themselves on taking every hill in high are asking their engines for costly, inefficient fuel use.

5—Approaching a red light, slow down gradually. Often you can gauge speed to catch the green.

6—At temperatures below 45°, use manual choke, if so equipped, for starting. Hold motor at fast idle until warm. Once underway, close choke as engine heats, since choke can use four times as much fuel as a warm engine needs.

7—In either hot or cold weather, when starting is difficult after a stall, hold pedal to the floor as this draws in maximum air to provide best starting mixture.

8—When parked, if only for a brief time, turn off the engine.

9—Avoid gasoline loss in the tank by not filling it so full the excess can spill. However, in hot weather keep tank more than half full to cut evaporation loss.

10—Keep your car in peak condition for most efficient fuel use: tune motor, flush cooling system periodically; change gear lubricants in spring and fall; clean air cleaner every 2,000 miles; change oil and lubricate every 1,000 miles; keep battery fully charged, tires properly inflated, brakes inspected against dragging.

Follow these rules conscientiously and, it is claimed, you can almost guarantee yourself a 15%, or better, reduction in your gasoline bill.

Burning Corncobs Capable Of Operating Refrigerator

NEW YORK—Did you know that you can operate a refrigerator on burning cornc obs—or burning sawdust or leaves?

You could do it with "anything that gives off heat," according to W. Paul Jones, president of Servel, Inc., which makes refrigerators that are usually operated on gas, electricity or kerosene.

"The absorption principle of refrigeration which we use provides cold from heat without need for a motor and compressor," Mr. Jones pointed out. "Gas, electricity or kerosene are the fuels commonly associated with the Servel refrigerator but the same refrigerating effect could be obtained from any material that gives off heat, because the absorption method uses a refrigerant (freezing fluid) so chemically balanced that, paradoxically, it turns cold when gently heated! "All you have to do," Mr. Jones said, "is to keep the heat going and regulated, and the cold continues."

Baltimore Mayor Finds Life As Official Host Exacting

BALTIMORE — Mayor Thomas d'Alesandro sometimes asks himself if it is really worth it. He has been scratched by a lion cub, a visiting camel stepped on his foot, a snake bit him and a chimpanzee even whacked him in the eye.

All the encounters came in the line of duty while the mayor was welcoming newcomers to the Municipal Zoo or taking part in other ceremonies there.

His honor did balk once recently, however. That was the time the city bought a baby gorilla. Mayor d'Alesandro kept his distance.

The next largest amount was reported by the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Miller, of Lynchburg, who reported the sum of $50.00. $200.00 was reported.

You are cordially invited to Men's Night at Galilee Church on the third Sunday in May at 8:00 P. M. The program is sponsored by the Men's Club. Churches are asked to send some of their men to help in the program.

Deciding Issue

If it had not been for the magic of the name "George Washington" the fabulous Phineas T. Barnum may have lived out his life in obscurity as a poor country storekeeper. One day, the man who was to become known as "the greatest showman on earth" heard an interesting story of a remarkable Negro woman, Joice Heth, who claimed to be 161 years old. When he went to see her, purely out of curiosity, she asserted that she had been the nurse of George Washington. Barnum became so excited upon discovery of documentary evidence to back up her claims, he decided to sell his store and exhibit the strange old woman in the east. The tour proved so successful, and stirred up so much interest, he was inspired to engage in other similar ventures. Finally, he formed the partnership with James A. Bailey, out of which grew the most famous circus in America.

Total of 2,500 cars daily are expected to use new Yorktown bridge.
